

Chronic Pain Is Real But You Have Options

By choosing a Global Elite Membership, you access treatment protocols that effectively treat some chronic pain conditions.

Incidence of Pain, As Compared to Major Conditions

Pain affects more Americans than diabetes, heart disease and cancer combined. This chart depicts the number of chronic pain sufferers compared to other major health conditions:

	Number of Sufferers	Source ¹
Chronic Pain	100 million Americans	Institute of Medicine of The National Academies
Diabetes	25.8 million Americans (diagnosed and estimated undiagnosed)	American Diabetes Association
Coronary Heart Disease (heart attack and chest pain) Stroke	16.3 million Americans	American Heart Association
Cancer	11.9 million Americans	American Cancer Society

The Burden of Pain On Every Day Life:

- 1 An estimated 20% of American adults (42 million people) report that pain or physical discomfort disrupts their sleep a few nights a week or more.
- 2 Almost two-thirds (59%) reported an impact on their overall enjoyment of life.
- 3 More than three quarters of patients (77%) reported feeling depressed.
- 4 70% said they have trouble concentrating.
- 5 74% said their energy level is impacted by their pain.
- 6 86% reported an inability to sleep well.¹

Something To Consider:

- In The US in 2008, expenditures to treat chronic pain ranged from $4,475 - $9680 per patient/year.²
- 80% of adults experience low back pain in their lifetime.³
- Low back pain accounts for about 25% of visits to primary care physicians.³
